Chapter 4 Asset Evaluation

Article 16 Principles for Evaluating Assets

The Investment Corporation shall evaluate Managed Assets in accordance with the generally accepted corporate accounting practices. In evaluating Managed Assets, the Investment Corporation shall comply with the general principle of consistency in order to ensure the reliability of the evaluation results, and carry out its business appropriately and faithfully for the benefit of unitholders.

Article 17 Asset Evaluation Record Date

The asset evaluation record date for the Investment Corporation is each account settlement date set out in Article 24. However, the record date for securities and other Specified Assets that can be evaluated using the value based on the market value is the end of every month.

Article 18 Method of and Standards for Asset Evaluation

The method of and standards for asset evaluation of the Investment Corporation are determined by the type of Managed Asset, and are as follows, as a general rule:

- (a) Real estate, surface rights and real estate lease rights
Real estate, surface rights and real estate lease rights are evaluated by subtracting the accumulated depreciation from the acquisition price. The amount of depreciation for buildings and equipment is calculated using the straight line method. However, the calculation may be made using another evaluation method only when the calculation using the straight line method is unsuitable for a legitimate reason and it can be concluded that there are no issues with the protection of the investor.
- (b) Trust beneficiary rights in trust of money, real estate, surface rights or real estate lease rights
Real estate, surface rights and real estate lease rights which are trust properties are evaluated in accordance with the previous item, and the financial assets which are trust properties and trust liabilities are evaluated in accordance with the generally accepted corporate accounting practices. Trust beneficiary rights are, when it is difficult to apply the same accounting methods as those for trust properties which are owned directly, evaluated by subtracting the total amount of trust liabilities from the total amount of trust assets to obtain the trust net asset value.
- (c) Equity Interests in Silent Partnership on Real Estate
Equity Interests in Silent Partnership on Real Estate shall be valued on the basis of the acquisition value plus or minus the amount of equity interests in the net amount of the profit or loss of such Silent Partnership.
- (d) Securities
  - (i) Securities listed on the financial instruments exchange
Securities listed on the financial instruments exchange are evaluated by taking the amount calculated based on the closing price on the exchange securities market set up by the financial instruments exchange.

(ii) Other Securities

Evaluations are made using the market value. However, securities without a market price are evaluated using the acquisition cost.

(e) Monetary claims

Monetary claims are evaluated by subtracting the allowance for bad debts calculated in accordance with the estimated cost of bad debts from the acquisition price. However, if the monetary claims were acquired at a lower or higher value than the nominal amount of claims and the nature of the difference between the acquisition price and the nominal amount of claims is considered to be an adjustment in interest rates, the monetary claims are evaluated by subtracting the allowance for bad debts from the amount calculated in accordance with the amortized cost method.

(f) Commercial papers

Commercial papers are evaluated taking the amount obtained by adding the acquisition value to the accrued interest calculated in proportion to the number of days. However, when the credit standing of the issuer has considerably deteriorated, the commercial papers are evaluated by subtracting the allowance for bad debts calculated in accordance with the estimated cost of bad debts from the acquisition value.

(g) Derivative Transactions

Derivative Transactions are evaluated using a market value as a general rule. However, hedge accounting applies to transactions recognized as hedge transactions under the generally accepted corporate accounting practices. This does not prevent the application of special treatment in financial instruments accounting with respect to interest rate swaps or the allotted treatment in the foreign currency denominated transactions accounting standards for foreign exchange reservation transactions.

(h) Miscellaneous

If the evaluation of an asset is not set out in the above items, the asset is evaluated as the amount that should be affixed according to its type using the regulations of the Investment Trusts Association, Japan (hereinafter referred to as the “Investment Trusts Association”) or generally accepted corporate accounting practices.

Article 19 Value in Securities Registration Statements, Securities Reports and Asset Management Reports

If making evaluations in a way that differs to the methods in Article 18 for the purposes of recording a value in a securities registration statement, securities report and asset management report, evaluations are made in the following way:

(a) Real estate, surface rights and real estate lease rights

As a general rule, the evaluation amount of real estate, surface rights or real estate lease rights shall be the value calculated from appraisal, etc. by a real estate appraiser.

- (b) Trust beneficiary rights in trust of real estate, surface rights and real estate lease rights and beneficiary rights in monetary trusts

Real estate, surface rights and real estate lease right which are trust properties are evaluated in accordance with the previous item, and the financial assets which are trust properties and trust liabilities are evaluated in accordance with the generally accepted corporate accounting practices. Trust beneficiary rights are, when it is difficult to apply the same accounting methods as those for trust properties which are owned directly, evaluated by subtracting the total amount of trust liabilities from the total amount of trust assets to obtain the trust net asset value.

- (c) Equity Interests in Silent Partnership on Real Estate

The Real Estate which are the underlying assets of Equity Interests in Silent Partnership on Real Estate, are evaluated in accordance with the preceding two items. The financial assets which are the underlying assets of Equity Interests in Silent Partnership on Real Estate, are evaluated in accordance with the generally accepted corporate accounting practices. The Equity Interests in Silent Partnership on Real Estate are then evaluated by subtracting the total amount of liabilities for Equity Interests in Silent Partnership on Real Estate from the total amount of assets for Equity Interests in Silent Partnership on Real Estate thereof to obtain the net asset value of Equity Interests in Silent Partnership on Real Estate.

In addition, the policy of the Investment Corporation shall be to make cash distributions in excess of profits, in principle, each fiscal period on a continuing basis.
